THE RETURN OF THE PERM!

I'm often asked by my clients, "What's new?" Usually when I tell them that the Perm is making a comeback, the response is EWWH!! The majority of people think perms are old-fashioned and unattractive. They associate perms with wild, frizzy balls of hair or some childhood hair experiment gone wrong. When I say perm, I'm talking about lovely waves of beachy hair that create body. I'm talking about modern perms that give hair a fresh, full look.

For the past twenty years, we've seen nothing but smooth, straight hair. I still remember the time when Jennifer Anniston got the signature haircut that erased her curls. It seems like yesterday and almost instantly, the perm was dead. Women flocked into salons asking for the "Rachel haircut," hoping for some Friends magic. A movement was born.

Typically, such a movement lasts twenty years, and guess what? nearly twenty years has passed since the smooth straight hair style became the norm. So it's definitely time for something new! I am so excited to see the new perm arrive because I personally have grown tired and bored with creating the usual straight blowout. Shouldn't hairstyles be made to stand out instead of blend in?

Variety isn't the only reason to love perms. they add texture and a lot of body for fine limp hair which helps achieve another trend - bigger fuller hair. It adds support your style after you've invested time into making sure it looks just right, helping it last longer.

it requires little or no effort except for the right conditioners and styling aids.

Imagine getting a wonderful new look that saves you time and energy. Banish the flat iron and give your head some heat relief.

We're entering a wonderful time for hair, so get excited. For those of you with natural beach-ready waves, congratulations! You're finally back in style. here's to the NEW look in hair that's brought to you by the perm.
